FROM JAMAICA — Capture of a Slaver — The steamship Philadelphia, Capt. Pearson, from Chagres, via Kingston, Jamaica, bounday New York, ran into our harbor on Monday night for a supply of coal, which she obtained the pext morning, and was off again early. The Philadelphia brings from Chagres gold dust to the amount of half million of dollars, and United States mails. We are indebted to the politeness of Mr.

H Mitchell, clerk of the Philadelphia, for the Kingston Morning Journal, of the 21st instant. but the only item of interest we find in it is the following: "Capture of a Slaver .- Account reached this city yesterday morning, announcing that Her Masty's schooner Bermuda, under the command of Lieut. Jolly, had captured a slaves on the north side of the island. At about half past five o'clock the Bermuda with her prize anchored at Port Royal harbor. The vessel is a Brazilian Brig. and when captured had on board; two hundred Africans. They were landed at Ocho Rios, St.

Emigrants, tired of doing nothing in Jamaica, were leaving Kingston in large numbers for the continent to seek their fortunes. The Journal says the total number already at Clargres, on their way, and getting ready to go, may be safely esti-

By this arrival the Baltimore Sun has also, received Kingston papers of the same date as the above, from which we learn that the Philadelphia had only 17 returning California passengers on board, a portion of those brought down to Panama by the steamer Tennessee.

Fugitive Slaves in New England.

Mr. Webster, in his letter to his Newburyport friends, mentions the singular fact, that in three New England States no seizure of jugitive slaves has ever been made. He says:

It is well to inquire what foundation there is for all this rhapsody of opinion, and all this violence in conduct. What and how many are the instances of the seizure of fugitive slaves which in New England in their time? And what have een the circumstances of injustice, cruelty, and atrocity attending them? To ascertain the truth in this respect I have made diligent inquiry of members of Congress from six New England States. On a subject so general I rannot be sure, of course, that the information received is entirely accurate, and, therefore, I do not say that the statement which I am about to present may be relied on as altegether correct, but I suppose it annot be materially erroneous. The result, then, leged slave has ever been made in Maine. No are of an alleged fugitive slave has ever been leged ingitive slave has ever been made in Vermont. No scizure of an alleged fugitive slave has been made in Rhode Island within the last 30 years. No seizure of an alleged fugitive slave known to have been made in Connecticut exegro was discharged for want of proof of identis. Some instances of the seizure of alleged ingeneration in Massachusetts; but, except one, their number and their history is incertain; that one took place in Boston 12 or 5 years ago; and in that case some charitably disposed persons offered the owner a sum of money which he reearded as less than half the value of the slave, ut which he agreed to accept, and the negro was discharged. A few cases, I suppose, may have occurred in New Bedford, but they attracted little notice, nor, so far as I can learn, caused any complaint. Indeed, I do notknow that there ever was more than a single casif or two arising ing of reclamations of slaves made by their mas-ters under the law of Congress. I am not speak-ing of instances of violent alidney on and kidnapning made by persons not professifig to be reclaim If this he a true account of all inthas happen ed in New England within the light 30 years, respecting the arrest of fugitive slades, and I believe passionate appeals, the vehemon's and empty de-clarations, the wild and fantastic conduct, of both men and women, which have see long disturbed and so much disgraced the continonwealth and the country?
